Mrs. D.*

I know not how to express my thanks my dear Miss Thats for your very kind present, and fear much I am depriving some other Friend of them, they are very beautiful, and shall value them much, do you think I may hope for the pleasure of your company? your Brother is staying with Mr. Brown, and our next door Neighbour that he would be with us constantly. Pray do give my Compliments to Mr. Abbey and ask him to allow you to come, say that both myself and Mr. Dille will take the greatest care of you, and do every thing in our power to make you comfortable. your Brother has just been with us, and is very well, he got home very well the other evening, but not till past 10 o'clock, very cold, and very hungry both. I must now conclude, and should like to hear from you much. Believe me to be yours most sincerely Please to present my Compl'ts Miss Tackey Maria Dille

Seize of doubts would be necessary to destroy your good opinion of me. In many letters of distant & late dates to John, to you, & to Harlan unanswered. I have explained my prospects, my situation, I have a firm faith that John has every dependence on my honor & affection and altho' the chances have gone against me my disappointments having been just as numerous as my successes, I am still above water & hope soon to be able to relieve him.

My wife & Mary change up & I abstracted by my writing when Mary wrote to me & I wrote to her.

I owe more than you might fearfully for you kindness to John. and am his
